

Law on Divorce in New York State Changes Today

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—New York State's new divorce law goes into effect today, discouraging the quickie Mexican divorce and prolonging for as much as two years the time it takes to end a marriage in the state.
The law will replace the state's rigid divorce statute that since 1787 has allowed only one ground for divorce—adultery.

Five new grounds will now be added: cruel and inhuman treatment, desertion, imprisonment for three years, and two types of separation, both for a minimum of two years.

For those who apply for a divorce in the state courts, new procedures will also come into force.
They include compulsory conciliation efforts and the appointment of special guardians for the children of estranged couples during the legal proceeding.

Under the new law every couple seeking a divorce in the state must appear before a court-appointed commissioner, who will decide what efforts should be made to save the marriage.

Eugene W. Du Flore, a recently appointed commissioner, outlined his function this way: "I'll have an informal conference with the couples and try to find out what's wrong, whether mother-in-law problems, sex or drinking, and see what can be done."

He added: "I'd estimate that I'll wind up sending about half the couples that come to me to either a marriage counselor, clergyman or social agency to help with any problems."

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, has accused General Motors of conspiring to close the entire automobile industry in the event of a strike at one auto plant. In the past, Reuther's strategy has been to strike only one of the "big three" automobile manufacturers, and let the others continue production. Reuther charged that General Motors has dominated an industry conspiracy to thwart his strategy.

THE WORLD

In a unanimous report, the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee yesterday urged the Johnson Administration to widen the air war against North Vietnam and to abandon its present policy of "carefully controlled" bombing. The subcommittee gave unqualified support to the views of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and asked Johnson to follow the advice of his top military commanders on the matter of choosing targets in North Vietnam. The report said that if the air war was not widened, "we cannot, in good conscience, ask our ground forces to continue their fight in South Vietnam."

President Johnson's panel of 22 observers of the elections in South Vietnam fanned out over the countryside or remained in Saigon to look at election procedures. Whitney M. Young, president of the Urban League, flew by helicopter to Phuocung, about 25 miles north of Saigon, where he looked at a ballot box and commented, "It's got a real bottom in it."

TRIMMING COSTS

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer announced the establishment of a committee to attack rising costs of government. A program now in operation has resulted in savings of almost $1.7 million since January. Budget Secretary Arthur Sampson was named to head the cost reduction program. Shafer made the announcement prior to signing the General Appropriations Bill for $1,400 billion.

Top General Sees Pullout from Viet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff, has said the United States may be able to consider withdrawing troops from South Vietnam in 18 months if the present rate of progress is maintained.

This view was expressed by the four-star general, considered to be one of the most conservative members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, as a conference of chaplains Monday night at Ft. McNair, Va., it was learned.

In perhaps the most optimistic statement made by a military leader about the war, Johnson told the chaplains in off-the-cuff remarks the U.S. military effort may be over the hump in 18 months as far as difficulties with major Communist action is concerned.

Johnson expressed confidence in the ability of the South Vietnamese troops to handle guerrilla-type attacks which he said could continue for years.

Johnson did not say a U.S. withdrawal would begin in 18 months, but that the time might be right at that point to consider slowly removing U.S. troops from the war zone.

Any pullout would be possible, he said, only if programs now planned continue to be successful and the military momentum achieved in recent months is maintained.

Johnson's thinking also assumed no intervention by the Red Chinese or the Soviet Union.

The Pentagon would neither confirm nor deny Thursday that Johnson made such remarks to the chaplain group.

Society Slaying Linked With International Plot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WEST CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — The vicious bludgeoning slaying of a society matron in her secluded Pennsylvania country estate provoked renewed interest yesterday in the mysterious disappearance of her younger brother five months ago in the jungles of far-off Malaysia.

The exotic Orient, with its sights and smells and temple bells, figured in the family background of the murdered woman, Katherine Thompson Wood, 74, and her vanished brother, James Thompson, 61, the so-called "Thai Silk King."

Thompson's disappearance last March 26 has never been solved, despite the intercession of a Singapore "temple medium," who envisioned him alive and living in a Malaysian jungle cave. He was one of the wealthiest and most famous Americans in Asia.

Dist. Atty. Alfred Delduce of Chester County, said the possibility of an international plot has been considered in the slaying of Mrs. Wood in her rambling gray stucco home, a quarter of a mile from other human habitation.

"The investigation has just not gone far enough to determine if this theory has any basis," Delduce added.

Mrs. Wood was beaten to death with a blunt instrument—an autopsy indicated the weapon could have been a crowbar or a tire iron. The bedroom where she was found was sparsely furnished.

IN STATE ASSEMBLY

OK Smokes Tax Hike

By JOHN L. TAYLOR
HARRISBURG (AP) — A

proposed 5-cent increase in the state cigarette tax was approved in the House yesterday, a day after it had gone down to defeat.

The vote was 102-89 with Republicans mustering a bare constitutional majority to send the bill and a related measure to the Senate.

The bill had been defeated, 100-98, on Wednesday, but Republicans flew one of their members back from a Hawaiian vacation and picked up the deciding vote from among the Democratic opposition.

Under the legislation, the present 8-cent tax on a pack of cigarettes would be raised to 13 cents. In addition, a temporary penny tax placed on cigarettes in 1959 to finance bonus payments for Korean war veterans would be made permanent with the revenue funneled into the state's general fund.

The combined bills would net an estimated $68 million in the current fiscal year to help finance Gov. Shafer's record $1.79 billion budget. The House had approved a $59.9 - million increase in the corporate net income tax Wednesday.

Rep. William G. Piper, R-Berks who made a hurried overnight flight from Honolulu, and Rep. John T. Walsh, D-Allegheny cast the votes which put the bill over.

Bomb More Targets, Says Subcommittee

By E. W. KENWORTHY
(c) N. Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON—The Senate Preparedness Subcommittee urged President Johnson yesterday to widen the air war against North Vietnam and abandon his policy of "carefully controlled" bombing.

It asked him to follow the advice of top-level military commanders in the selection of targets.

The subcommittee gave unqualified support to the views of the Joint Chiefs of Staff that an effective waging of the war "requires closing the port of Haiphong, isolating it from the rest of the country, striking all meaningful targets with military significance and increasing the interdiction of the lines of communication from Red China."

Unless this were done, the subcommittee said in a unanimous report, "we cannot, in good conscience, ask our ground forces to continue their fight in South Vietnam."

The chairman of the preparedness subcommittee, a subordinate unit of the Armed Services Committee, is Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., who has long advocated larger use of airpower against North Vietnam.

Yesterday's report followed three weeks of hearings on the air war against North Vietnam. In the closed hearings ten military officials, including the chairman and members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and most ranking generals and admirals in the Pacific and Southeast Asia, recommended an extended and intensified use of airpower.

In his testimony on Aug. 25, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara insisted that he and the military commanders did not differ fundamentally on over-all strategy and that their differences on bombing tactics were "very narrow."

In a prepared statement made public at the time McNamara made plain, however, that the differences extended to the usefulness of a greatly enlarged bombing effort.

He said there was no reason to believe North Vietnam "can be bombed to the negotiating table"; that wider bombing, including the systematic bombing of Haiphong, would not significantly inhibit the movement of supplies into South Vietnam; that it would not save American lives because the war would have to be eventually decided by the fighting in the south, and that the bombing of some recommended targets carried the risk of provoking intervention by Communist China and the Soviet Union.

President Johnson's news secretary, George Christian, told reporters that when McNamara and Secretary of State

Reuther Says GM Leads Conspiracy on Shutdown

By JERRY M. FLINT
(c) N. Y. Times News Service

DETROIT — Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, accused General Motors yesterday of conspiring to close the auto industry in the event of a strike at only one car manufacturer.

Contracts between the union and General Motors, Ford and Chrysler expire Wednesday night. Reuther promised to strike one of the three if agreement was not reached.

The union strategy through the years has been to strike or threaten to strike only one of the three, allowing the others to build cars. After the settlement at the "target" company, the other two follow the pattern. Reuther was to name the target yesterday. Instead he met with reporters to charge the conspiracy and warn that a peaceful settlement was impossible if the conspiracy continued.

He said that the union would be "challenging this conspiracy by every appropriate means." "It's close to restraint of trade," Leonard Woodcock, a U.A.W. vice president, said. General Motors makes parts for both Ford and Chrysler. Without these parts the two could be forced to halt car production, and Reuther said this was G.M.'s lever.

WUHAN AREA RADIO REPORTS

Fighting Heavy in Red China

By FORREST EDWARDS HONG KONG (AP) — Renewed fighting in the big central Red Chinese industrial area of Wuhan and the southern metropolis of Canton and terror in the west were reported yesterday.

The report on heavy fighting in Wuhan came from the provincial radio, which backs party Chairman Mao Tse-tung in his power struggle with supporters of President Liu Shao-chi.

Without going into details, the Euph Province radio demanded that Maoist leaders take positive action to halt the fighting. Peking asserted on Aug. 12 that after days of fighting between Maoists and anti-Maoists, leaders loyal to Mao had been placed in power in Wuhan.

Wuhan is a big steel and industrial complex embracing the cities of Jhankow, Hanyang and Wuchang on the Yangtze River in Hupoh Province. Wuhan had been reported quiet after the Maoist takeover.

The reports of fighting in Canton and terror in the western province of Szechwan were impossible to verify. The Canton reports came from Chinese travelers reaching Hong Kong and they have proved exaggerated in the past. The Szechwan data came from Chinese Nationalist intelligence sources in Formosa, hostile to Mao.

Travelers from Canton said anti-Maoists were openly boasting they would "bathe Canton in the blood of Red Guards," the teen-agers Mao loosed in his struggle against Liu.

They told of an attack by anti-Maoists on the navy-controlled shipyard at Whampoa near Canton Aug. 23 and some said cannon were given to the attackers by the army.

Others said the army was on the side of the Maoists and the soldiers had handed out thousands of rifles to city residents to use against "anti-Maoist bandits."

China watchers in Hong Kong were inclined to discount this story because it would put arms in the hands of people whose loyalty was uncertain.

They also cast doubt on the report that the army was on the side of the anti-Maoists. They said anti-Maoists could have put up wall posters from which the travelers got their information without the knowledge of the army. It is believed the army in Canton has been concerned primarily with trying to stop the bloodshed of the rival factions.

Chinese Nationalist intelligence sources said increasing numbers of people were fleeing Szechwan's cities to the countryside to escape the fighting between Maoists and their foes.

They mentioned Chungking, the capital of China in the war against Japan, and Chengtu, the capital of Szechwan Province, as two cities where an exodus from terror was taking place.

Christian added that the President had no reason to be "concerned" about any differences of opinion between the Secretary of Defense and the nation's professional military leaders.

"You cannot expect uniform views," Christian asserted. "In a free society, you are not going to end the debate."

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the majority leader, is known to have been perturbed about the release of statements by the military commanders to the Stennis subcommittee that revealed them to be in open opposition to the Secretary of Defense.

In evident anticipation of the subcommittee report, Mansfield took the floor yesterday to remind members that Secretary McNamara was acting under the direction of the President and that any attack on him was in reality an attack on the President. In addition to supporting the policy of limited bombing, Mansfield went on to say:

"In this statement (on Aug. 25) McNamara reveals again the wisdom of one of the most fundamental principles of our constitutional structure—the civilian direction of the defense establishment.

"I would hope that there would be no challenge, direct or indirect, on the part of the military or the Congress to the predominance of our civilian officials in the conduct of the affairs of this government."

The subcommittee said yesterday that it was not seeking to "derogate in any manner the principle of civilian control of the military" nor, it added, was it pointing a finger

Tax

Walsh had intended to vote for the legislation Wednesday, he said, but when he saw his vote was not enough to pass it, he decided to vote against it.

Prior to the second roll call, he told the House he believed some taxes were necessary to finance various appropriations for industrial development, clean streams, veterans benefits and other state services.

"If they (the Republicans) can produce 101 votes today, I'll give them the 102nd vote," Walsh announced.

Republican Majority Leader Lee A. Donaldson argued in a floor speech that while taxes were distasteful, they were necessary this year to continue state programs.

"Make no mistake about it, our fight is for clean air, and clean streams, and scholarships and more jobs and decent housing and the countless other vital programs wrapped up in the preferred appropriations package," he declared.

Minority Leader Herbert Fine-man, D-Philadelphia, who has led the fight against the tax proposals, said Democrats had been at the forefront in the fight for the programs Donaldson itemized.

"Yes, you need some new taxes," Fine-man said, "but you don't need $300 million. All you're trying to do is to create a fiscal surplus."

Police said Mrs. Wood was in the habit of leaving the doors to her home unlocked and that the killer apparently walked right in. There was no outward evidence of robbery, but Mrs. Wood's son, Harrison W. Wood of Malvern, Pa., said a $7,000 necklace was missing.

A maid reporting for work found the body. She and a handyman who had mowed the lawn Tuesday were questioned, but authorities said the interrogation was routine.

"I won't say there are no suspects," said a detective. "We are working to develop this case and that's all I can say now."

Stocks

Committee. Staggers had written to Cohen, and to the presidents of the New York and American stock exchanges, inquiring what they were doing about the recent wave of speculation in the securities markets.

In reply, Cohen expressed "considerable concern" over the "great increase in trading volume" that occurred in the earlier months of this year, an increase "often accompanied by sharply rising prices in medium and lower priced stocks."

In addition, he said, the commission "viewed with some apprehension price fluctuations in certain securities which do not appear to reflect any significant developments in the operations or prospects of the issuers."

Cohen's letter offered no clues as to which stocks were being looked at for evidence of possible manipulation, except for an indication that most were relatively low-priced.

The inquiries being made of the brokerage firms appeared to focus not so much on suspicions of outright manipulation as on the possibility that the firms were generating considerable activity in certain stocks without any sound basis,

TO FIVE MILLION VETERANS

New Vets Bill Hikes Benefits

(c) N. Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — President Johnson signed into law yesterday a new veterans bill of rights extending to about five million veterans increased educational, job training and other benefits.

The new measure, which is expected to cost $285,603,000—$115 million more than Johnson had originally requested from Congress—during the first fiscal year, gives veterans and their dependents a cost-of-living increase in their pension payments. It provides full war-time rates of compensation for those injured during the Vietnam war and pensions for those who become disabled.

It also grants higher educational allowances for veterans attending college under the so-called cold war G. I. Bill and adds new training programs under the same law.

The legislation extends a broad variety of benefits to all veterans who have served at least 180 days in the armed forces after Jan. 31, 1955. This was the date legally terminating the Korean war. It also established Aug. 5, 1964, as the legal beginning of the Vietnam war.

The chief provisions of the new bill will:

1) Authorize a cost-of-living increase averaging 5.4 per cent in the nonservice-connected pensions of veterans, their wives and children, and an average 8.5 per cent increase in the pensions of widows and children in the lowest income categories—informants suggested that about 1.2 million veterans, or their survivors, from all past wars will receive an average 5 per cent boost in their pension checks beginning Oct. 1;

2) Increase by $5 a month, the pensions of Spanish-American war widows, widows of earlier wars and the pensions of "house-bound" disabled veterans as well as provide various increases for those needing "regular aid and attendance";

3) Provide for veterans of the "Vietnam era" various educational and medical compensations including a $1,600 allowance for the purchase of a specially equipped automobile for seriously disabled veterans serving on or after Jan. 31, 1955.

AS VIET ELECTION APPROACHES

War Efforts Anti-Terrorist

SAIGON (AP) — Allied activity in the Vietnam war centered largely yesterday on efforts to cope with Red raids and terrorism aimed at disrupting Sunday's election. Security guards and police were out in heavier than usual numbers.

Off-duty American military men and civilians working for U.S. government agencies were advised to stay off the streets and out of public places as much as possible even before a strict curfew goes into effect tomorrow.

Field sweeps and road-clearing projects engaged battalions of troops against Communist forces which have killed more than 150 civilians, attacked four provincial capitals and blasted about a dozen bridges so far this week in a drive to cow the voters.

Incidents major and minor dotted the country: —Police officers are high on the terrorists' target list and a Viet Cong gunman wounded a Vietnamese national policeman with a pistol shot as he was leaving a Saigon theater Thursday night. The policeman fired back and killed him.

—Fifteen Communist mortar shells lobbed into Phan Thiet, Thiet, the Binh Thuan Province capital on the coast 95 miles east of Saigon, killed a Vietnamese child and wounded 11 civilians.

—A guerrilla band kidnaped 39 young men at gunpoint from the village of Cua Doi, 288 miles north of Saigon. The physically sound victims of such operations, pursued by the Viet Cong even when no political issue is immediately at stake, ordinarily are given Communist indoctrination and drafted into combat or labor units.

Pre-election disorders seemed to be having no immediate effect on the campaigning. Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, who heads the military ticket, and 10 civilians competing for the presidency conducted a final joint news conference in Saigon.

President Johnson's 22 election observers fanned out across the country to inspect polling places and see as much as they could of the campaigning and the government's arrangements for the voting.

With U.S. air squadrons maintaining pressure on North Vietnam, the U.S. Command disclosed the loss of two planes during 137 multiplane missions above the border Wednesday.

Ground fire downed a Navy A4 Skyhawk jet and an A1 propeller-driven Skyraider, boosting the announced losses over the North to 666. A helicopter, braving Communist shellfire, rescued the Skyraider pilot. The Skyhawk pilot is missing.

North Vietnam's premier, Pham Van Dong, said in a statement broadcast from Hanoi that a halt in the raids "and all other acts of war" north of the border is a prerequisite to peace and "the United States has no right to demand any reciprocity whatsoever."

Reiteration of this standard line came in the wake of talk from South Vietnamese campaigners about the possibility of peace negotiations. Thieu has emphasized that, if elected, he would ask the United States to halt the bombing as a good will gesture for peace talks if Hanoi showed good will on its part.

Two B52 raids hit enemy artillery positions, bivouacs, staging areas and troop concentrations in the demilitarized zone, spokesmen said. Similar targets were attacked in the same border area by the big Strategic Air Command bombers Wednesday night.

The sharpest ground action reported by the U.S. Command occurred Wednesday about 14 miles northwest of Saigon.

SENTENCE REDUCED

Ralph Emerson Dial, an Oklahoman serving a seven-year prison sentence for ore smuggling in Brazil, smiles in his cell in Brasilia after a court reduced his sentence. He was arrested in February, 1966, with four other Americans and convicted of smuggling atomic minerals (tantalite ore, used in nose cones of space craft) out of the country in a converted B-26. Those convicted with him escaped last October.

Reagan's Tuition Hike Bid Defeated

(C) N.Y. Times News Service LOS ANGELES — Gov. Ronald Reagan's eight-month campaign to inaugurate a tuition fee at the University of California met defeat yesterday by a 14-to-7 vote of the university board of regents.

The governor, after two hours of further deliberations, persuaded the regents to approve in principle a charge on students for scholarships and other special purposes. But no amount was specified, and the board agreed that other revenue sources should be explored, to make any levy on students minimal.

The governor said he considered the tuition vote less a defeat for himself than "for the people of California" who, he said, he believed were heavily in favor of abandoning the institution's century-old "free education" tradition.

University students now pay on average about $1,800 a year, including board, room and $250 in special fees earmarked for specific purposes, such as the student health service.

The $250 charge puts the university among the least expensive of 60 public institutions of its kind in the country. An additional $250 tuition charge suggested by Governor Reagan would put the university among the half-dozen most expensive.

No specific fee was mentioned in the question voted today. Motions were made to consider additional student fees under another label than the controversial name "tuition." But Governor Reagan said this would be "hypocritical," and insisted on a vote simply for or against the principle of tuition.

L.A. Swelters as Smog Persists in 100+ Heat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS LOS ANGELES (AP) — A persistent blanket of hot, stifling smog draped itself across Los Angeles yesterday as desperate residents coaxed and cajoled air conditioners for a hint of cool relief.

The weatherman, however, promised only more heat.

Smog, primarily from automobile exhausts, was accentuated by the high temperatures—as high as 105 Wednesday in some suburbs and up to 113 in Burbank in the populous San Fernando Valley.

The Los Angeles Department of Water and Power reported record use of water and electricity Wednesday, indicating heavy use of air conditioners and water for wading, swimming and sprinkling.

As Los Angeles sweltered

Wednesday night through the highest overnight temperature—78—recorded for any August in-land suburbs were deluged by showers from surprise storms that brought lightning and thunder, knocking out power in some areas.

"We had at least a dozen palm tree fires," said an official in Pomona, about 30 miles east of Los Angeles. "The lightning also struck some power poles and knocked out the power."

To the south, in San Diego, an electrical storm struck early Thursday morning, touching off a fire in an Episcopal convent and sending firemen after other lightning-caused fires. Some of the lightning jolts, police said, set off air raid sirens during early morning hours.

Land Has Other Uses

That some officials in the government have finally come to realize that land is useful for other than growing crops, producing lumber, grazing cattle, and providing a place to put four-lane highways is evident in an announcement made in Washington recently.

A new study, designed to measure the future demands on all natural resources (with emphasis on land uses) found within the nation's publically-owned lands has been announced by Rep. Wayne N. Aspinwall, chairman of the Public Land Law Review Commission. To be completed no later than March 15, 1968, the study will be made by Robert N. Nathan and Associates of Washington, D. C.

Nathan and his associates have had 31 years experience in the field of applied economics directed towards providing information suitable as a basis for private and public policy making and decisions. According to Aspinwall, the study is intended to come up with national projections for all commodities and regional projections for specific types of commodities used in place.

"Target years for all projections will be 1980 and 2000," Aspinwall said, "and although we recognize that future is not always foreseeable,

The Support Her — Her Way

In the gloom beyond the footlights, old men blinked. Their women smiled wisely. The tiny figure onstage swung the big feathered fans so that everyone almost saw the nude body. Not quite, Sally Rand has been teasing men and titillating women for thirty-five years. The figure, except for heavy thighs, is still pink porcelain.

The old bucks watched, and wept for their youth. Time has run out for the Cocoanut Grove crowd, but not for Miss Rand. She is 113 pounds, and 63 years, of tenacity. Her war against the waltzes under the chin, the fried egg eyes, is total. She will be swinging those big fans, and prouetling under a five-foot balloon, the day her ticker quits.

Once, she was Helen Beck, daughter of an army colonel. She was born near a town called Elkton, Missouri. At the age of 14, Helen was a student at Central High School, in Kansas City. She had dates with a homey boy named Casey Stengel. He was studying to be a dentist. Which shows that he didn't know his bicusps from third base.

Helen always enjoyed the good things. She studied ballet, and she hid the Missouri accent under a layer of Boston Brahmin and British remittance. Always and forever, she was entranced with the mystery of being female, and the thousands of deceptions and devices of exploiting femininity.

Show Biz is an articulate madam. Helen chose it as her life work. She played everything from a cigarette girl to a tent carnival. In 1932, Chicago had one good try at motion pictures. In 1926, Cecil B. DeMille had changed her name from Helen Beck to Sally Rand. But Chicago had missed the picture. The Volga Boatman, with William Boyd, and no one heard of Miss Rand, nor did any entrepreneur ask her.

She played eight performances of The World Between, with De Wolfe Hopper, and the turkey closed, with no gravy. Some hoodlum admirers got her a job at the Paramount Club on Huron Street by telling the proprietor that his place stank. He nodded agreement and Sally got $75 a week — "less 10 percent arrears" — to amuse drunks on a stage the size of two armful stamps.

Sally bought two ostrich fans and a chiffon nightie. An alcoholic pianist romped into some flatted Chopin and yelled "You're on." Sally was on, but the nightie was off. So she made an oyster shell of the fans and the drunks looked up and whistled between their teeth.

She did four shows a night, 7 days a week. In 1933, Chicago put on the greatest carnny of them all and called it "A Century of Progress." There were some profound science exhibits, but Sally Rand and her fans ran off with the crowds. She was so big that she could earn $10,000 getting arrested.

The fans were dropped for big rubber bubbles. They cost her $11,000 in those days, but the men didn't care what she was hiding behind. She was 5 feet tall and 100 pounds, and they were breathing like run-away asthmatics. Her highest point came when she earned $14,000 for a single performance.

Happiness was something she sometimes saw in another woman's eyes. Miss Rand never had it. She loved her dad, but the colonel had no time for her. The hunger for love was enormous, and men by the hundreds tried to flatter her into a little nest, but she wasn't looking for an overnight lease. She wanted a permanent man.

In 1942, she married a rodeo rider named Turk Greenough. When the honeymoon was over, she found he couldn't talk about anything but horses. In addition,

This past month two grizzly bears foraging twenty miles apart killed two coeds in Glacier National Park. These tragic deaths made front page news in every newspaper in the country.

A few days later an animal, believed to have been a black bear, mauled two teenage boys near the same National Park. This incident also made news in most of the papers.

Already there have been outbreaks for the total elimination of grizzly bears from Glacier National Park, and I suppose that there will be demands that black bears be outlawed also.

Had all four of these young people been killed in car accidents, their deaths would have attracted only local attention in the press.

Yet the fact that bears in Glacier National Park have killed two people (although these are the first deaths from grizzly attacks in the 57-year history 1980 is only 12 years away from the completion date for the study, and the year 2000 will be only 32 years away."

Milton A. Pearl, director of the Commission, said that the Nathan projections would be helpful to the Commission in meeting its statutory obligations "to compile data necessary to understand and determine the various demands on public lands which exist at this time and are likely to exist in the near future."

While timber, forage for domestic livestock, energy and energy fuels, selected non-fuel minerals, water, and some agriculture crops will be considered in the study, emphasis is expected to be directed toward wildlife habitat, sport fishing requirements, outdoor recreation and other newly developing land demands.

With a half-million acres of National Forest land at our back door and a 12,000-acre lake at the doorstep the Nathan projections should be quite meaningful to the future of our area. There is little question that a better understanding of what the public (who is the owner of all public - owned land and facilities) wants from the investment it has made should be quite helpful to those faced with making final decisions.

Benefits For The Retired

We are now preparing to boost pension benefits for the millions of our retired men and women to all-time highs. The 1967 hikes in benefits will be the biggest since our Social Security System was founded back in 1935. They will mark significant progress toward breaking the ancient link between old age and poverty.

We are now also preparing to amend the Medicare law which implicitly recognizes that health care is a basic "right" of a U.S. citizen along with the earned right of an income in old age. The Medicare amendments will mark significant progress toward breaking the ancient link between old age and illness.

We are now starting to tackle the problems of a proper allocation of housing patterns for the elderly, ranging from suitable independent living facilities to nursing homes integrated with other community services. We are at least beginning to make progress toward breaking the ancient link between old age and physical isolation.

But we are making shamelessly little progress toward breaking the ancient link between old age and "uselessness."

There's no doubt that we are moving toward solutions of three of the problems of retirement: income, health and housing. But, as John W. Gardner, secretary of Health, Education & Welfare, says in a recent article in IBM's magazine "Think," a fourth problem is "interest and purpose in life." And he emphasizes that while this problem lies at the heart of many of the difficulties of retirement, "it is often the least recognized and the most neglected."

On all sides, I see the dramatic contrasts between meaningful and meaningless retirements. I am convinced that we ignore the challenges of how to find meaningful activity in our later years at great peril to our own selves (on the basis that we'll be lucky enough to reach the age brackets of the 60s and 70s.)

Of course, hundreds of corporations try to help their employees with pre-retirement counseling, but they reach no more than a tiny fraction of American workers. Of course, there are some excellent pre-retirement programs but the percentage of excellent programs among corporations, unions and community organizations is picaresque.

What Gardner is fundamentally pleading for is our active attention to the value of leisure, our deeper understanding of the meaning of leisure, our wiser use of the time of leisure. In relating retirement to leisure, he proposes:

(1) The development of mid-career clinics to be sponsored by corporations, schools, universities, unions, other organizations. The aim of the clinics would be to persuade an individual to THINK about the years ahead, which many are extremely reluctant to do, and then to guide them toward making what Gardner calls "one of life's toughest adjustments" with grace.

(2) Special provisions for continued use of retired people whose skills are in demand. In the academic world, able professors are now enjoying a brisk "post-retirement market." Law firms commonly arrange to have an elderly partner remain in some meaningful relationship to the firm. Why couldn't more corporations adopt these civilized practices?

(3) A "helping corps." Here, Gardner is zeroing in on the challenge of major shortages of people in virtually every "helping service" as well as hitting the target of meaningful retirement. All sorts of groups, clubs, unions, fraternal organizations, could organize helping corps of older people for volunteer work in a locality. The result could be an ideal meshing of demand and supply.

It would be just as senseless to outlaw grizzlies in Glacier National Park as it would be to remove all the lions from Serengeti National Park in Tanzania, Africa. People come half-way around the world to see lions in their native habitat in Serengeti and other National Parks in Tanzania, Kenya, and Uganda.

The African lion has a more sinister history as a killer of men than the American grizzly, yet tourists in these great National Parks in East Africa observe lions at close range and get a vicarious thrill out of the experience.

The American Indian and the young Masai tribesman of Africa had much in common in their respect for the killer beasts—the grizzly and the African lion. The Indian warrior who could kill a grizzly single-handed with primitive weapons could call attention to his prowess in the hunt by wearing a necklace of grizzly claws.

The young Masai, to prove his manhood, had to face alone a charging lion and kill it with a long-bladed spear.

Don't Lift Any Rugs

WASHINGTON — From the Olympian heights of Capitol Hill, amid rose-tinted clouds, the House Ethics Committee has been viewing Congressional conduct and admiring the view. The committee has followed the stern admonition of Speaker John McCormack not to lift any rugs nor open any closet doors.

At one session, Rep. Charles Halleck, R-Ind., who used to be called "Two-Cadillac Charlie" because of his ability to keep his garage filled with cut-rate Cadillacs, declared loftily that the American people have a high opinion of Congress. The other committee members happily chorused their agreement.

All the while, the House Post Office Committee was knocking under the lobbyists who wanted higher pay for postal workers and lower rates for the big mail-order houses. Jerome Keating, the letter carriers' boss, boasted to Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., that he would dictate the postal pay bill. Postal lobbyist Don Kerlin was spotted emerging from a closed session of the committee that was writing postal legislation. And Rep. Thaddeus Dulski, D-N.Y., was caught taking testimonial dinner contributions from postal lobbyists.

An unsettling number of Congressmen have been responsive to overtures and campaign contributions — from lobbyists. Across the street from the House Ethics hearings, in private suites in the Congressional Hotel, some Congressmen play poker with lobbyists (though gambling is against the law in the District of Columbia). It would be interesting to know who wins most of the pots.

In gold-patched suite 512, kept by a number of labor lobbyists, such Congressmen as Joe Pool, D-Tex., Dominick Daniels, D-N.J., and Robert Giarno, D-Conn., play regularly. However, insiders swear that the game has a $2 limit and that Congressmen often lose to the lobbyists. Some members of the House Merchant Marine Committee reportedly have been more lucky in their card games with shipping lobbyists.

Most House members are attorneys who practice law out of the back doors of their Congressional offices. These law firms, with few exceptions, represent clients with considerable interest in what Congress can do for them. During the summer vacation, dozens of Congressmen took off on "fly now, pay never" junkets at the taxpayers' expense. Dozens more keep relatives on the government payroll; others have learned how to squeeze the green ink out of the taxpayers' dollars through the various Congressional allowances.

Finally, more than 80 per cent of the members deposit their money in a Swiss-style bank which

The Real Issue for 1968

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—The election year 1968 is beginning to look like 1948 in more ways than one. President Johnson almost surely faces a third party on the right, headed by George Wallace, and probably a fourth party on the left, possibly with Martin Luther King as its candidate.

This would roughly reproduce the situation of Harry S. Truman two decades ago, flanked as he was by the insurgencies of J. Strom Thurmond of the States Rights party and Henry Wallace of the progressives. Johnson also is beginning to hoist faint signals suggesting that, as Truman did in similar unpromising circumstances, he may run a strongly partisan campaign against Republican iniquities, particularly those of the Republican delegation in Congress.

One of these signals came from Larry O'Brien, the genial Irishman who runs the Post Office Department with one hand, the President's congressional relations with the other, and keeps both wrist-deep in the Democratic party.

O'Brien prefers to slap backs rather than faces and for at least another year he will have heavy responsibility for guiding the Johnson legislation on Capitol Hill. The President himself has usually chosen to read Isaiah rather than the riot act to those who oppose him, and so far in his presidency he has limited his attacks almost exclusively to the Ku Klux Klan, Barry Goldwater and "nervous Nellies" on Vietnam. In 1964, the word "Republican" scarcely passed his lips, except in slyly inviting them as admirable Americans to join him repudiating Goldwater.

So when O'Brien went for the Republican jugular in recent speeches in California and Ohio, with caustic stress on their "obstructionism" in Congress, he was out of character—personally and in his role as the President's agent on Capitol Hill. In private, at least, Johnson himself is speaking just as sharply of the congressional Republicans, on whom he tends to lay the blame for every rebuff he has suffered this year.

All this well may indicate a Johnson re-election campaign next year on something like the following terms:

When the Democrats swept the elections in 1964, the liberal 89th Congress that went into office with the President produced more legislation for the good of the people—in Medicare, civil rights, education and other fields—than any in history. When the electorate nevertheless replaced 47 House Democrats with reactionary Republicans in 1966, the conservative 90th Congress immediately frustrated everything else the President and the Democratic party wanted to do, tried to undo everything already done and sought to turn the clock back to Herbert Hoover, or maybe even William McKinley.

Thus, if such a party gets con-the House maintains for them. A reported $1 million is now on deposit, and no one's account can be examined, not even by the Justice Department, without the consent of the House.

Meanwhile, Congressmen continue to admire themselves in the mirrors on the House Ethics Committee's wall.

The Soviet secret police, in their handling of the whole Svetlana Alliluyeva affair, have blundered badly.

As our own intelligence has pieced together the story, the defection of Stalin's daughter caused a crisis inside the KGB (secret police). Premier Alexei Kosygin, who had authorized her trip to India, lost face. But it was the secret police who were blamed for letting her slip away.

Fearing the worst, they concluded that her flight from communism had been arranged by the Central Intelligence Agency to embarrass the Soviet Union. The announcement that her memoirs would be published on the eve of the 50th anniversary of the Russian Revolution helped to persuade them that it was all an elaborate CIA plot.

Apparently, the secret police expected the CIA to doctor her memoirs and turn them into a propaganda document. The purpose, in their conspiratorial view, would be to discredit the Communist revolution on its anniversary and distract attention from the celebration.

They tried to thwart this, first, by destroying Svetlana's credibility. No less than Premier Kosygin, perhaps mindful of the personal embarrassment her defection had caused him, called her "sick" and "morally unstable."

To take the bloom off Svetlana's book, the Russians also rushed out their own translation of her manuscript. Victor Louis, a Soviet journalist, tried to peddle it to Western publishers. As it turned out, the manuscript hadn't been doctored at all and she had kept scrupulously away from politics. Her recollections of her father were strictly personal and were probably less harsh than the official Soviet line.

Thus, all the secret police accomplished was to focus more attention on Svetlana's defection, itself an embarrassment. For she was a Communist celebrity, fondly remembered in Russia as "Svetanochka," the lovely little girl who had been raised in the Kremlin.

Svetlana has complained that the Soviet translation contains material she never wrote, and Victor Louis has charged that she omitted some passages from the version she submitted to her publishers.

The CIA has obtained copies of the Soviet translation and, except for differences in translation and perhaps a little additional material in the Soviet version, neither the CIA nor the KGB appears to have tampered much with the manuscript.

Deeper And Deeper

HARRISBURG — Reporter's Notebook.

DEEPER AND DEEPER—It was with a touch of irony perhaps that as lawmakers this week were going through their weekly ritual of trying to decide what to do about the Governor's request for $290 million in new taxes he should plop in their legislative laps a projected half-billion-dollar Capital Funds Budget.

"My word," gulped one lawmaker, "I'd forgotten all about this budget in all the stew we've been in trying to work out the Governor's General Fund Budget!"

He wasn't alone. Many another lawmaker too had lost sight of the fiscal blueprint for capital building projects in the uproar and commotion that has brewed over where to pick up more than a quarter-billion dollars in new taxes just for the General Fund Budget.

Of course the one soothing point insofar as the Capital Budget is concerned (if it can be regarded as soothing) lies in the fact that tax monies are not required to directly underwrite the huge cost. These projects are covered by the State's official borrow-and-build agency, the General State Authority which floats bonds for the needed funds.

Just what is the size of the task of the Capital Budget the Governor has proposed for the 1967-69 fiscal biennium? Why, it's a piddling $23,492,394. What is the overall capital building picture for the Keystone State? Another piddler: at present there are only $1,480,000,000 worth of projects authorized!

HO - HUM DEPARTMENT -- With proper tooting of mimesograph bugles the Governor's Office this week let loose what is termed "a major package of penal reform legislation" designed to upsnuff Pennsylvania's lagging penal and correctional system.

In fact, quoth His Excellency in referring to the legislation: "This legislative package is designed to make Pennsylvania's correctional institutions and the laws that govern their operations the most modern and enlightened in the Nation."

To many an old-timer on Capitol Hill the gubernatorial words had a familiar ring—almost identical in meaning and intent to those used only a few administrations ago when with a flurry and honking of trumpets the State's correctional and penal system was removed from the Department of Welfare and transferred to the Department of Justice.

At that time the intent too was to make Pennsylvania's system "the most modern and enlightened in the Nation"—a move that was made "after great study" by a special committee of noted penologists and what-not. The current changes too have been recommended by another "special advisory committee."

FOR MAMMAL LOVERS ET AL—The popular book "Mammals of Pennsylvania" is again being made available to the public, according to the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

The first printing of this Commission publication—the only work of its kind incidentally—was sold out in less than a year, and the new enlarged edition now is being made available. It's a full study of more than 40 mammals of the state and is presented, along with less detailed studies, of rare mammals. The 282-page book is available from any of the six field division offices of the commission—for $2.

LEGISLATIVE BOX SCORE—Of more than two-score pieces of legislation on the docket classified as "major administration bills" by the Shafter Administration, five had successfully run the gauntlet of legislative machine-gunning as of this week—up one from the previous week—to gain final gubernatorial approval.

The pace (if it can be called that) is perhaps interesting in light of the fact that the 1967 Legislature has not completed its eighth month of sessioning.

Bucs' Law Hanging Up Glove

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Vernon Law, one of Pittsburgh's top pitchers for 16 years but plagued in recent seasons by arm trouble, announced his retirement yesterday.

Law, 37, compiled a 162-147 mark in 16 seasons, though in 10 of them the Pirates were in the second division.

He won the Cy Young Award in 1960 as the outstanding pitcher in the major leagues and led the Pirates to a seven-game World Series victory over the New York Yankees, Pittsburgh's only World Series triumph in 40 years.

Injuries have haunted Law since then and he had just three more winning seasons, 1962, 1965 and 1966. This year Law was 2-6 and had a 4.17 earned run average.

The veteran right-hander retired once before, near the end of the 1963 season, but pitched his way back into shape and was reinstated for 1964. A year later, he compiled a 17-9 record and was voted comeback player of the year.

Law left little doubt that this time, though, his retirement was for real.

"I dreaded this day but knew it had to come sometime," he said. "It's a decision every athlete must make, and I'm glad I can make it myself rather than have others make it for me."

Law's retirement left the Pirates with only three players from their 1960 championship team—Roberto Clemente, Bill Mazeroski and Elroy Face.

In 1960, Law compiled a 20-9 record with a 3.08 earned run average. His 20 victories and 120 strikeouts that year were career highs.

He won only 15 games in the next three seasons after hurting his arm and went on the voluntarily retired list in August 1963 after spending a short time in the minors.

Law returned to win 12 games for the 1964 Pirates before putting together 17-9 and 12-8 records in 1965 and 1966.

This year, though, he completed only one start and his earned run average was the poorest of his career.

He left Pittsburgh Tuesday to return to his home in Boise, Idaho. A pulled groin muscle had been nagging him for several weeks.

UMBRELLAS TO FOG LIGHTS

Rain postponed the opening of the U.S. Amateur Golf Championships on Wednesday, as competitors trudged off the storm-swept course at Colorado Springs, and fog was the hazard yesterday. Protected by gloves and rubber socks Bob Dickson of McAlester, Oklahoma took the first round lead with a one-over-par 71. (See story below)

Bob Dickson Slogs, Fogs His Way to Amateur Lead

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Fog, as thick as the mud under foot, proved only a minor handicap to Bob Dickson of McAlester, Okla., as he slogged his way to a three-stroke lead yesterday in the weather-pocked first round of the United States Amateur Golf Tournament.

The rangy Dickson, already the 1967 British Amateur king, wore winter gloves and plastic socks during his one-over-par 71 round over the Broadmoor West course.

Three times during the murky day, play was halted because of weather conditions. Fog and 44-degree temperature were the reasons for the stoppage of 90 minutes in early morning. Two more interruptions came late in the day when a fog blanket covered six of the middle holes, including the 10th.

All scores posted Wednesday, original date for the first round, were washed out because of flooded greens.

Only 98 of the talented 150-man field completed the first round. The others will finish their stint today before starting on the second round. More rain is promised.

Two 18-hole rounds on Saturday, weather permitting, will determine the successor to Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ontario, as U.S. Amateur champion.

Cowan was among those unable to finish yesterday's round. He was two under for eight holes.

Next to Dickson came Marty Fleckman, power hitting lumberman from Port Arthur, Tex., with a 74 that included four three-putt greens "because my hands were so cold I didn't know at times that I was holding a putter."

Ron Cerrudo of San Francisco, who had to borrow a No. 8 club when he broke his own, splashed home with a 75. He seemed most disturbed because of three-putting the 17th hole from 20 feet, also blaming the cold.

In addition to Cowan, name players who did not complete the first round included William C. Campbell of Huntington, W. Va.; Ed Tutwiler of Indianapolis, Ind.; Hal Underwood of Humble, Tex.; Dale Morey of High Point, N.C.; Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., and Robert Smith of Sacramento, Calif.

The early morning fog and mist drifted past the Broadmoor clubhouse windows like the smoke from a campfire. The ground clouds seemed to bounce off Cheyenne Mountain, which borders the 6,946-yard course where par is 35-35-70 on the west. A 20-mile per hour wind held the fog immobile against the mountain but wasn't able to push it over the 6,900-foot peak.

The afternoon delays were caused when the Cheyenne foothills played hide and seek in the fog. Hardest hit was the 10th hole, where the green is 400-feet higher than any other putting surface on the tight, rolling course. The 10th fairways here, from tee to green, rise 130 feet in 375 yards.

One of The Best

Julius Boros has finished among the top 10 golfers 10 times in U.S. Opens. He played in 17 of them.

With the day fast approaching its end, a spectacular fog bank simply settled over the 10th and stayed there. Another 41 minutes of delay was the result.

Terry Dear of Albuquerque, N.M., who finished with a 36-43-79, said he hit two wood shots during the heaviest fog in the morning and couldn't follow either more than 50 feet because their color was the same as the mist.

Another unusual touch during the weird day, during which less than 100 spectators slogged their way around the course, came on the same hole when Charles A. Koprivica of Butte, Mont.; Tom Whitelaw of Cincinnati, and Leo Kubian of Waukesha, Wis., stopped between the second green and third tee because of the fog.

Suddenly, the course's automatic sprinkler system began to function, dousing the trio.

Scores during the water-logged day varied all the way from Dickson's 71 to the 95 reluctantly posted by Paul Purizer of Phoenix, Ariz. Jim Grand of Wethersfield, Conn., an alternate on the Walker Cup team, had a 90. His card included a 9 on the par 3 11th where he topped his ball twice, shanked it once, hit two trees and three putted. Dickson said he "knew I was on my way when I blasted out of the trap on the second hole and sank my three-footer to save my par. I was certain when I blasted out of another trap on 12 and sank a 20-footer."

U.S. Swim String Broken, Smith Whipped in 100-Meters at Games

By ROBERT LIU TOKYO (AP) — Charley Hickcox and Mike Burton led an American assault on three more world records last night in leading the formidable swimming and diving team to four more championships in the World University Games.

But a Japanese high diver and a British breaststroker snapped the Yanks' unbeaten record in the Olympic pool and an Ivory Coast sprinter upset California Tommie Smith in the 100-meter dash final of the track competition.

Hickcox, winner of the 100 and 200-meter backstroke in world record time and a member of the victorious 800-meter freestyle relay team, bagged his fourth gold medal, beat his 100 meter time and shared in a world record for the 400-meter medley relay quartet.

The 20-year-old Indiana U. junior from Phoenix, Ariz., was clocked in a world record :59.1 for the leadoff leg as the team was caught in 3:57.2, eclipsing the mark of 3:58.4 set by the United States in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics in the same indoor pool.

Hickcox's backstroke 100 wiped out the fresh standard of :59.3 he had established on Monday in winning the individual event.

The other members of the record-breaking crew were Ken Merten, Pacoima, Calif., breaststroke; Doug Russell, Midland, Tex., butterfly, and Ken Walsh, East Lansing, Mich., freestyle.

Burton, a 19-year-old UCLA junior from Carmichael, Calif., won the 1,500 meter freestyle in 16:34.6, and was caught in a world record of 8:45.5 for 800 meters. He has a pending mark of 16:34.1 for the 1,500, racked up on Aug. 13 when he also raced the 800 in a record 8:46.3.

The Yanks also won the women's 400-meter freestyle relay in 4:04.2 and was caught in a Michigan State senior from Pittsburgh, beat John Ferris, a Stanford freshman, in the men's 400-meter individual medley in

Conewango Gals Results Listed

Conewango Valley Country Club ladies added a "fewest putts" tourney to regular play on Tuesday. Mary Conarro carded the day's low gross, an 84. Results by flight were as follows:

First flight — Ellie Voigt, fewest putts (26) and low net (76); Mary Conarro, second low net (77).

Second flight — no contest. Third flight — Martha Johnson, fewest putts (29); Doris Hamilton, low net (80); Ann Martin and Helen Werner, tie for second low net (83's).

Fourth flight — Mabel Laufberger, fewest putts (29) and tied for second low net with Pat Huey (85's); Jane Bergler, low net (80).

Fifth flight (nine holes) — Joyce Christenson, fewest putts (17) and second low net (46); Marge Atwell and Marilyn Simonsen, tie for low net (44's).

4:46.7. Ferris' time was 4:57.7. This gave the U.S. 24 of the 26 gold medals as the four-day swimming and diving meet ended.

Japan's Yosuke Arimitsu, a 23-year-old senior at Nihon University, astonished and pleased the home fans by winning the men's platform diving title with 798.15 points. Keith Russell of Mesa, Ariz., the springboard champion, was second with 766.35 and Bernie Wrightson of Detroit fourth with 743.75.

Britain's Diana Harris touched out Cynthia Goyette of Detroit, the 200 meter winner, in the women's 100-meter breaststroke in 1:18.9 to the American's 1:19.0.

Linda Gustavson, a tall, 17-year-old from Santa Cruz, Calif., won her fourth gold medal in pacing the winning 400-meter freestyle relay team. The other swimmers were Lynne Ailsup, Bloomington, Ill.; Martha Randall, Philadelphia, and Madeline Ellis, Indianapolis.

Countdown to Kickoff DRAGONS

Warren Area High School's squad put in a comparatively light day on the practice field yesterday. Head Coach Toby Shea put a few more plays into the Dragons' offense and most of the time was spent on execution and timing in the Blue and White attack.

The Dragons, impressive in a scrimmage with Erie Memorial Tech last week, get a real test today when they host a tough Punksutawney squad for a 4 p.m. session on the hilltop field. Last season the Groundhogs easily handled a visiting Warren team.

Shea reported no new injuries yesterday.

KNIGHTS

Eisenhower's Coach John Lassinger is having an unusual problem this football season. Each night, after a rugged practice, the Knights march into the locker room only to find a cold shower waiting for them. This frightening task has faced the Knights since the beginning of practice. The reason for the icy water is because of construction going on at the Eisenhower building.

At yesterday's practice, Lassinger commented on the performance of defensive guard Charlie Sanders. Sanders is a junior and had plenty of varsity experience at this spot last year. The morning session saw the Knights practice punting, while the offense ran passing drills. In the afternoon the squad analyzed movies of last year's games and then again ran rugged conditioning drills.

EAGLES

Youngsville's gridders covered the gamut of football fundamentals yesterday, including the running, passing and punting portions of the game.

Thirty minutes was devoted to kicking situations, and the Eagles also concentrated on defense, with emphasis against stopping the pass. A live scrimmage was also conducted for both the offense and defense.

Coach By Welker reported a slight knee injury by junior tackle Allen Bunk, but otherwise the squad is in good condition.

Tomorrow, Youngsville is host to an inter-school scrimmage, the second and last of pre-season practice for the Red and White, who had previously met Titusville. Tomorrow's session is slated to start about 9:30 a.m.

WOLVERINES

Sheffield High's football team travels to Union City tonight for a scrimmage starting at 7:30 the latter half of which will be under the lights.

Yesterday, the Wolverines worked on defense, including rotation of the secondary in passing situations, defensive end play and adjusting to different offensive formations. The Orange and Black also covered passing and pass protection.

The Wolverines will hold a light practice this morning to sharpen up for tonight's scrimmage.

Head Coach Joe Giordano reported that veteran end Ed Cowen's groin injury is coming around and he worked with the squad yesterday.

Rams Have Chance at Division Crown, If Backs Stay Healthy

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — If the Los Angeles Rams can keep Dick Bass and Tommy Mason healthy they should be in the race in the new Coastal Division of the National Football League right to the end of the line.

George Allen's success in keeping Bass in moth balls through most of the training season last year has led him to try the same with Mason, the ex-Minnesota Viking. Mason had surgery on both knees during the winter and wears 3½ pounds of tape in training sessions.

In the first year of the reign of Allen as head coach it was obvious that the Rams had to count on that Fearsome Foursome of the defense to keep them in ball games. Too often the offense faltered in TD territory and had to settle for a Bruce Gossett field goal.

"Lack of speed hurt us last year," said Allen at the Rams' new camp on the campus of California State. Other clubs could tighten up their defense and make us go for the field goal. In our trades and drafts we concentrated on helping our offense.

"Bernie Casey is going to give us more deep speed and Mason is the kind of back we need to go with Bass. We knew all about Tommy's bad knees. We plan to use him as a spot player."

Bass, who bounces off tacklers like a spin ball, had his best year in 1966 when he was healthy for all 14 games and ran for 1,090 yards.

Using Mason on a spot basis, Allen probably will team Les Josephson or fleet Willie Ellison, the top draft choice from Texas Southern as a running mate for Bass.

Roman Gabriel, having withdrawn his suit against the club after that contract-signing argument with the Rams and Oakland during the inter-league war, is the No. 1 quarterback. Bill Munson, No. 2 reportedly is thinking about playing out his option because he wants to play regularly.

Arnold Made Favorite to Win Carling
WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (AP) — Arnold Palmer is the favorite while Jack Nicklaus, Dan Sikes and Roberto de Vicenzo are among the missing for the $200,000 Carling World Golf Championship that opens today.

Nicklaus, Sikes and de Vicenzo, who finished one-two-three in the rain-delayed Westchester Classic that just finished Wednesday, skipped the World — as they'd planned — but Palmer arrived yesterday and immediately was stamped the favorite in the field of 152.

Nicklaus, who picked up the $50,000 first prize at Rye, N.Y., planned a rest, as did Sikes, who was one stroke back. De Vicenzo, the globe trotting British Open champion from Argentina, had previous commitments.

In all, 13 of the original entrants have withdrawn and have been replaced. The latest to pull out was Gardner Dickinson. He was replaced by Bobby Mitchell.

Behind Palmer, whose booming drives should help on the long, 7,024 yard, par 71 Board of Trade golf course, some of the top choices are Julius Boros and Billy Casper, each a two-time former U.S. Open champion, and steady young Frank Beard, winner of three tournaments this year.

Ford Named Yanks' 1st Base Coach

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Ford, who retired as a pitcher earlier this season, will be the New York Yankees' first base coach next season, the team said yesterday.

The 38-year-old Ford was in his 16th season with the Yankees when he left the active ranks last May because of arm trouble. He had compiled a 2-4 record with a 1.64 earned run average. He then undertook special assignments for the Yankees traveling throughout their farm system.

As first base coach, he will replace Loren Babe, who will remain in the New York organization as a scout.

Although the Yankees decline to talk about it, it is very likely that Ford will become the pitching coach in 1969. Jim Turner, the present pitching coach, who is 64 years old, has another year on his contract.

Asked what he will do as a first base coach, Ford quipped: "Keep track of how many outs there are, how many men are on base and watch out for line drives."

The trade with Atlanta for Casey gives the Rams a long ball threat. With receivers like Jack Snow, Bucky Pope and Tommy McDonald, the Rams may be able to spin off one in a trade. Pope's progress is encouraging but he is coming off two seasons of idleness after knee surgery.

Billy Truax is the tight end with Hal Bedsole's knee putting him out of action.

Allen is a great believer in going all out right now and no worrying about the future. He traded away eight of the first 10 draft rights a year ago so the only collegians certain to make it are halfback Ellison and Dillon Talbert. He is a 6-foot-3, 238-pound defensive tackle from Texas.

"We're going to pull out all the stops this year," said Allen. "If we hadn't lost our last 1966 game to Green Bay 27-23 we'd have been second and would have played at Miami in the playoff bowl."

Tom Mack, back from the Army, is battling Don Chuzy for a starting job on a veteran offensive line that includes Joe Scibelli at the other guard, Joe Carollo and Charlie Cowan at tackles and Ken Iman at center, backed by George Burman.

Opposing quarterbacks again will be haunted by that big front four of Lamar Lundy, Merlin Olsen, Rosey Grier and Deacon Jones with Talbert in reserve. Jack Fardee and Marle Baughman are the outside linebackers with Myron Pottius in the middle and Doug Woodlief and Tony Gullory back of them.

The defensive backfield jelled last year and finished third with 26 interceptions. Clarence Williams and Irv Cross play the corners and Chuck Lamson and Eddie Meador the safety posts.

Secret Drills Scheduled By Maryland's New Coach

By GEORGE BOWEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Maryland's football practices which start today, will be secret, Coach Bob Ward announced yesterday.

The only sessions which will be open will be next Monday, Labor Day. Otherwise, admission will be by tickets only. The new head coach, a Maryland graduate, announced some other innovations at a news conference.

The entire squad will be lodged in the same dormitory. "We want to give them some supervision," explained Ward. An All-America guard twice, Ward also has added two positions on his staff, a full time recruiter and an administrative assistant. The recruiter—with the more dignified title of director of personnel—will concentrate on high school football players in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. The staff can maintain contacts with coaches and others on players in the Maryland and the Washington area, Ward said. Maryland opens its nine-game schedule Sept. 30 at Oklahoma where Ward was an assistant coach for three seasons.

He also had been an assistant for five years at Maryland after graduation, at Iowa State and Army before being selected this year to replace Lou Saban. "Am I really the head football coach here?" Ward said he asked himself the other day as he looked at Byrd Stadium which also has something new for this season. The entire turf was replaced. Ward's biggest player problem is at quarterback due to a decision made last week by Al Pastrana, a senior, not to risk playing on a knee operated on last year.

A sophomore southpaw passer, Chuck Drimal, will be given first crack at the job. "He looks like a winner and that's what I want," Ward said of the youngster from Valley Stream, N. Y.

NY Cops Told Not To Shoot

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City's 25,000 policemen have a new guideline that tells them exactly when they can use their gun and when not to. Most often, the answer is: Don't.

The guideline was issued by the Police Department to advise its men of how much force may be used under the state's revised penal law, which goes into effect Friday.

The new law severely restricts the use of firearms by policemen in preventing crimes, making arrests and stopping an escape.

Almost every instance a policeman might encounter is loaded with special circumstances. And he has only a split second in which to make his deadly decision.

"The power of life or death is an awesome burden and if mistakenly applied," the guideline says, "tragic results may obtain both to the victim and to him, who mistakenly takes another's life."

Suppose a policeman sees a man with a knife chasing someone down the street. The victim is getting away. Can the officer shoot?

The guideline says: The policeman may not shoot the aggressor because deadly force is not necessary to protect the victim, who is successfully escaping.

The old penal law said that—when necessary to make an arrest—a policeman could shoot a person who had committed a felony or who had committed a crime the officer had reasonable cause to believe was a felony.

The guideline cites another case:

Example. A burglar, surprised by a policeman in a room, shoots at the policeman, missing him.

Response. The policeman may shoot back.

Reasons. The burglar is about to use unlawful deadly physical force and it is necessary for the policeman to shoot to defend himself.

Under the new penal law deadly force may be used by a policeman when he reasonably believes it necessary in only three situations:

1. In self-defense or in the defense of a third person from unlawful deadly physical force.

2. To prevent six specified dangerous felonies: forcible rape, forcible sodomy, robbery, kidnapping, the use of physical force upon the occupant of a dwelling during a burglary, and—under limited circumstances—arson.

3. To arrest or prevent the escape from custody of a person who is an immediate threat to human life.

Hangman's Rope Threatens Neck Of the Hangman

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
SALISBURY, Rhodesia — The Rhodesian government announced yesterday that three men who have been in death cells for nearly two years are to be hanged soon.

The executions will be the first in Rhodesia since it seized independence from Britain in 1965.

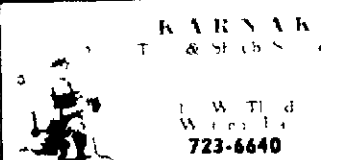

Since then executions have been stayed because Britain regards the regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith as illegal, and it has not been recognized by any foreign country. Under international law, therefore, an execution could render all responsible, including the "officer administering the government," the cabinet, the executioner and prison officials themselves, liable to capital punishment for a treasonable offense.

Mental Health Group Fills Important Role in County

By BETTY RICE

A pilot group of interested persons has spearheaded the organization of a Warren County Mental Health Association, which has been duly incorporated and ready to adopt bylaws soon. The need for such a volunteer organization has long been recognized by many professionals in the mental health field. At Warren State Hospital, for example, counties served by the institution where mental health associations are active, do more for their patients than those without.

Parent organization of a county unit is the Pennsylvania Mental Health Association, which in turn operates under the National Mental Health Association.

While the new MHA here is not a segment of the state-mandated mental health mental retardation program committees, it can assist that group by soliciting public support and providing educational data.

The county's MHA is "not a pressure group" in any sense of the word. The association is aware that with new community health centers springing up throughout the Commonwealth, there will be a vast need for volunteers to back them up—to help toward a good mental health program.

Probably one of the most important fields in which MHA volunteers can work is with those mental patients discharged and returned to society. MHA workers can help in vital follow-ups, the value of which has been proved in Mercer County.

Although the farthest away geographically from Warren State Hospital, Mercer County accounts for the greatest number of patients. On the home front, however, the county mental health association has done a tremendous job in programming.

At the present time in Mercer, the association has been able to return patients to secure medication at reduced prices or at no cost. The association has sponsored pre-school study clinics under a psychology professor from Thiel College.

Their latest venture is to introduce a basic psychology course for junior high school students to enable them to better understand themselves and their adolescent problems.

Those close to mental health programs see a crying need for more children's services and stress the importance of prevention of mental or emotional problems.

The Warren County Mental Health Association, operated exclusively for charitable purposes, hopes to develop a citizen's voluntary movement to work toward the improved care and treatment of the mentally ill and handicapped; for improved methods and services in research, prevention, detection, diagnosis and treatment of mental illness and handicaps; for the promotion of mental health and in other related fields.

Other contemplated services would ultimately benefit the individual seeking information by providing a directory of mental health resources and keeping it up to date, supplying a central information service on its own or in collaboration with other responsible groups and other activities.

The MHA is the "nerve center" for community interest and action on mental health problems of the area it serves. Many special projects can also be planned such as helping provide transportation to the hospital, where and when necessary for patients and relatives.

While the volunteer service program within Warren State Hospital has filled a great void, there is still work to be done on the outside.

A small group of people met to launch the program and are named as incorporators of Warren County Mental Health Association.

They are: Donald L. Blair, Sheffield; Jane H. Bergler, Warren; Thomas K. Barratt, Warren; Andrew L. Yurick, Warren; William L. Kams, Tidioute; S. Knox Harper, Warren; Anne P. Blair, Sheffield; Bert Levinson, Warren; L. Lester Rickey, Warren; David A. Smith, Warren; Thomas M. Donaldson, Warren; Nelson O. Johnson, Warren; Nancy M. Daye, Warren; M. Thayne Sando, Warren; Elizabeth A. Jones, Sheffield; George Templeton Jr., Warren; Richard H. Baker, Warren; Adele E. Mead, Warren; Richard C. Rapp, Warren and William H. Dyke, North Warren.

An interim board will serve until an annual meeting can be held and members duly elected.

At the present time the association will seek to add new members to the original group.

In 1965, and there is little change in two years, Warren County had 156 patients at WSH. The institution serves 12 counties in the area.

Sheffield Historical Museum is Incorporated

Formal hearing for incorporation of the Forest Industries Historical Museum of Sheffield Inc. as a non-profit corporation, in the main courtroom of Warren County Court House at 10 a. m. Tuesday, August 29, 1967, was attended by a distinguished company of Warren and Forest County citizens interested in the history of the region.

Attorney David Swanson, of Barnes, presented the formal documents. Earlier steps were formal application in Harrisburg, and approval of the name of the new corporation. Swanson remarked it was one of the largest groups he had ever seen attending incorporation of any non-profit corporation.

Among those attending were Ernest C. Miller, president, Warren County Historical Society; past president of that body T. Kenneth Stratton, William M. Cashman M.D., and Harold C. Putnam; Warren County Historical Society Archivist Mrs. Frances Ramsey; Judson Wilson, Kellettville; Andrew Marfink, of Saybrook, and Robert Ache of Warren, from Pennsylvania Dept. of Forest and Waters; Bruce A. Smith, president of the new museum, and Donald Lang a director, from Sheffield; Mrs. Wayne Edwards of Starbrick, her daughter Kathy Anne Edwards, and Kathy Jean Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Edwards; and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin R. Hoff.

Officers of the court included Warren County Prothonotary and Clerk of the Court Warren Lowe and secretary to Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr., Mrs. Helen Olson.

Judge Alexander C. Flick, detained an extra day for his annual medical check-up, had assured Attorney Swanson of approval of incorporation of the new museum. He duly signed the documents on Thursday.

On Tuesday evening, at 7:30, in Sheffield High School Cafeteria, a meeting was held of the board of directors, to adopt bylaws, and transact other necessary business.

Participating in this meeting were President Bruce A. Smith, Laurence Stotz, John Burns, Chris Yutze, Norman F. Koller, Emil Helm, Erv Rader, Donald Lang, Archie Brown, Judson Wilson, Mrs. Ruth Miller, Stanley Lantz, John Zavinski, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hoff. Meetings of the board of directors were set for the second Tuesday of each month.

Appointed to the building committee, who will take formal steps to acquire the building, the gift of Wendell McMillen of McMillen Lumber Company, are: Chris Yutze, Emil Helm, and Donald Lang.

Finance committee includes: Eugene Leseman, Donald Brooks, Wendell McMillen and Archie Brown.

Accessions and Gifts committee: Norman F. Koller, Mrs. Ruth Miller and Miss Richwalzsky, Stanley Lantz, John Zavinski and Judson Wilson.

Public relations: Franklin R. Hoff and Judson Wilson.

Upon formal acquisition of the historic Tionesta Valley Railroad station, the lease to the land on which it stands will be transferred from McMillen to the society, by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, at an annual land rental of $60.

William Russin, the museum's curator, was unable to attend, being absent for a week of military duty.

Undergoes Surgery

Kathy O'Neill, daughter of Phyllis and Gene O'Neill, of 275 Buchanan st., Warren, underwent leg surgery at Hamot Hospital in Erie yesterday. She will be in the hospital seven days and at home in a cast for three months. Kathy's grandfather, Horace Gorton, 3 West Wayne st., is also a patient at Hamot. He had a blood clot removed from his leg Tuesday and will be hospitalized 10 days.

Senate Confirms

The state senate Wednesday confirmed the nomination of James B. Stevenson of Titusville as chairman of the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission. Stevenson has served on the commission under four governors. He was originally appointed by Governor George Leader and subsequently by Governor David Lawrence and William Scranton.

Sleeps Through It

Little Kimberly Haun of Franklin caused quite a stir Tuesday night and she slept through it all. The five-year-old daughter of a city patrolman was outside playing during the evening. About 9 p.m. the family started a search for the youngster and by 10 p.m. everyone was becoming quite alarmed. City police were summoned and turned out in full force to join the hunt. They looked in cars, trailers, and into the woods, called and made all kinds of noise as they searched. About midnight the tot was found, curled up asleep under one of the trailers several doors from her home. She had on a lightweight dress but didn't seem too cold and not the least bit disturbed or scared.

Meter Receipts

Borough parking lots yielded a total of $761.26 when meters were tapped yesterday. On-street facilities accounted for $546.87 while municipal parking lots were tapped for $214.39.

$450 Collision

Property damage totaled $450 in a two-car traffic mishap at 11:45 a.m. yesterday on LR 337 st. in Pleasant township. State police trooper Richard DeSimone, who investigated, said a car operated by John L. Bosley, 8 S. Irvine st., Warren, was parked in the east-bound lane on McKinley st., prior to turning around by backing up onto LR 337. Police said Bosley failed to see a car driven by Earl T. Rossman, 1109 Pennsylvania ave. w., approaching north and backed into the path of the Rossman vehicle.

Project FIND Needs 9 More Senior Citizens as Aides

Project FIND (friendly, isolated, needy, desolated) has already found 83 senior citizens in Warren and Forest Counties who were seeking part-time work.

Certain screening requirements, such as being over age 55, preferably over age 60, being of low income, able to drive a car and a resident of certain target areas, resulted in employment of 21 older persons as Community Aides.

The oldest person employed is 78-years-young, the average age is 65. All have completed a 40-hour training session under Donald E. Taft, Project FIND supervisor.

A total of nine additional community aides are needed, two in Tionesta area; two in Endeavor; Hickory area; one in Columbus; one in Enterprise; one in Sugar Grove and two in the Tidioute area. Additional applications are being received and potential employees interviewed.

Senior citizen employees of Project FIND are calling on their neighbors, age 55 or over, to secure certain data which will be used to alleviate and end poverty conditions among older persons.

Erie Men Indicted In Riots

ERIE — Trial is scheduled Sept. 12 for six Erie Negroes, including 24-year-old Benny Wall, who were indicted Wednesday by a grand jury on charges of inciting to riot in the July 19 racial disturbance that rocked the 18th and Holland vicinity.

Wall was also indicted on two counts of assault and battery, stemming from the racial incident. He is accused of pouring beer on and roughing up television newsmen Al Benedict and Charles Wisniewski, who were at the scene.

The jury returned separate indictments on the riot charge against Wall and David Bethel, 21, for whom $2,500 bail was set. The other four are listed on the same indictment with bond set at $500 each.

Wall and Bethel remain in Erie County jail. Wall was also to face a preliminary hearing yesterday before Alderman Samuel Y. Rossier on another count of inciting to riot, attempted arson, resisting arrest and three counts of assault and battery stemming from another eastside racial incident July 31.

State police are offering a special school for fire police. The only contest will be truck inspection with a folding fire ladder the prize.

Judging by Chautauqua County fire officials will be based on presentation of clean working equipment in a knowledgeable manner by the man in charge of the program.

A test on all subject matter presented in the afternoon will conclude the program. Starbrick Fire Dept. will offer a chicken barbecue at 6 p. m. for $1.50 per person, reservations to be made Robert Smith by Wednesday, Sept. 6.

The committee consists of Scott Stuart, chairman; Erm Fitzgerald, Douglas Ward, Harley See and Donald Curtis.

All firemen attending the activity, which starts promptly at 1 p. m., will receive gifts and information provided by co-operating business firms.

Holiday Warning

When Americans take to the highways after 6 p.m. today for the Labor Day weekend, from 560 to 660 of them will not return home, the National Safety Council estimates. The death toll will be from 90 to 190 greater than that of a non-holiday period of the same length of this time of the year. The council also estimated that at least 9.7 billion vehicle-miles will be driven, 300,000 more than normal travel during a comparable period.

TWENTY-FOUR PRINTS OF MASUO IKEDA will be on view at Bates Gallery, Edinboro State College, from September 14th to October 14th. The spirit of fantasy and satire, as well as the artist's choice of graphic media—drypoint distinguishes his prints from the school of woodcut which has dominated printmaking in Japan since the war—Warren artists, both amateur and professional, might like to view the work of this master of a highly personal technique which differs from that of any other artist working in intaglio today; he is fundamentally a draftsman, a printmaker who draws on metal. Born in Mukden, Manchuria in 1934 of Japanese parents, he has lived in Japan since 1945 and since 1952 in Tokyo. His work was included among the works of Japanese artists sent to the Seventh Biennial of Sao Paulo; among other honors, he was awarded a prize at the Sixth International Biennial in Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, and in 1966 Ikeda won the grand prize for printmaking at the 33rd International Biennial of Art in Venice. The public is invited to view his exhibition at Edinboro which has been organized by The Museum of Modern Art, New York. Gallery hours Mondays through Fridays are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

THE COLORFUL PARADE THE SHRINERS put on in Warren last Saturday evening was without question a delight to many. But one of the highlights of their two-day stay in Warren was unheralded and largely unknown, though it gave much pleasure to those who need it most—10 o'clock Friday morning found the auditorium of Warren State Hospital filled with a happy and expectant crowd; the Shriners with their gay and colorful costumes, and all their paraphernalia, were there to present a thoroughly professional and polished program of entertainment. They put on a two-hour show full of excitement and showmanship for the patients, and those of the hospital personnel lucky enough to be present—Clowns appeared in all their ridiculous splendor with their entire bag of tricks; the musical groups played; and, the trick motorcyclists in their eye-catching costumes exhibited their feats of "derring-do" on the hospital grounds. Arrangements for the two hours of wonderful entertainment were made by James Blomquist of the Warren Shrine Club. The Shriners started to lay plans for this special portion of their visit to Warren as early as last winter. Well, according to the information I have received, it was well worth all the thought, time and effort spent on it—Those at the hospital will be talking about their friends, the Shriners, and their show for a long time to come.

THE CVCC SWIMMING MEET for Juniors was held as planned on Sunday, August 27th, but, after one meet in each age group, it was called off because of the weather. This Sunday it will be continued at 2 p.m.—A hope should be expressed here that the freezing weather which seems to be setting in is changed to sunny and warm by the time Sunday comes—There was a good turnout last Sunday, according to Mrs. Harold Reinhard, and Mrs. William Simonsen, co-chairmen of the event, in spite of the weather, it is hoped even more will be there this Sunday. All trophies and medals, which have been on display, will be awarded after the meet—The meet is open to members included in the age group of 5 years through high school.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Maybe you will not think my letter is worth printing, but I learned one of life's bitter lessons the hard way and I want to share it. My mother and I were very close. I always knew my parents didn't get along. Mom cut me in on every one of Dad's escapades. She made sure I knew all about his unfaithfulness and how much she suffered. This created horrible feelings of ambivalence because I really loved my father. Mom wanted me to hate him and there were times when I felt guilty because I couldn't. When I was first married I had a rough time. I had been taught that all men were liars and cheats and not to be trusted. Thank God my husband was wise and understanding. He knew my problems sprang from childhood and he helped me overcome them. If my husband should ever do anything to disappoint me you can be sure I will never let my children know. This is one lesson I was — TAUGHT WELL

DEAR TAUGHT: Parents who use their children as the battleground on which to wage war against one another are the cruelest of all. You were lucky to marry a man who is kind and understanding. I am happy for you and sad for your mother. She was a sick woman.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I live in an apartment house. Across the hall lives a sweet old lady about 70. The slot-type mailboxes are in the entrance way and there is a wire basket for large magazines.

For the last two months, this sweet old lady has greeted us at our door on the day our magazines arrive to say she saw them in the basket and took them to read, knowing we would not mind. She invariably says, "I'll return them tomorrow." She never does.

Both my husband and I would feel like fools knocking on her door and asking for our magazine, so we end up buying more magazines at the drug store. What would you do? — H AND D

DEAR H AND D: The next time that sweet old lady greets you at the door to announce she has taken your magazines, walk her back to her apartment and tell her you want to save her a trip returning them because you had planned on reading them this very evening. Tell her you will give her the magazines after YOU have finished with them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the woman whose mother-in-law came to visit one year and cleaned out her closets, medicine cabinets, moved the furniture and relined the drawers sounds like the story of my life — only my mother-in-law lives in town and does this once a month.

She comes with her own vacuum cleaner, rags, brooms, pails, washing powders and furniture polish and tears my house apart. She drags home my curtains and tablecloths so she can "launder them properly."

I have never seen so much energy in my life. She says, "You feed the dog and I'll pull the weeds. You scrub the steps and I'll wash the ceilings. You clean out the refrigerator and I'll varnish the floors."

When she leaves I have to go to bed for two days. I have asked her not to clean my house but she says, "I love it." My husband says I should be tickled pink to have the help and to keep quiet. What do you say? — EMMA

DEAR EMMA: When she arrives, leave for the day and return in time to say "Thank you." Your husband has a point, kiddo.

1 ♠ 2 ♣ 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠
A bit of camouflage proved crucial to a successful campaign by South, the declarer at four spades.

West opened the ace of spades and continued with the five on which East discarded a small heart. Declarer observed that, if he took a club finesse and it lost to the king in East's hand, the latter would surely return a diamond thru South's king and West would cash two tricks in the suit to defeat the contract.

Declarer was safe as long as East was kept out of the lead and in order to improve his prospects, South decided to engage in some subterfuge. North's nine of spades was permitted to hold the second trick and the ace of clubs was cashed next, on which South followed with the nine.

A small club was led and East assumed that his opponent held a singleton and was attempting to establish a long club in dummy by ruffing out the suit. He, therefore, played the six of clubs, however, to his surprise, declarer produced the jack which won the trick.

South crossed over to dummy twice more to trump clubs and establish North's fifth card in that suit for a diamond discard. He then conceded one diamond and claimed his contract with an overtrick.

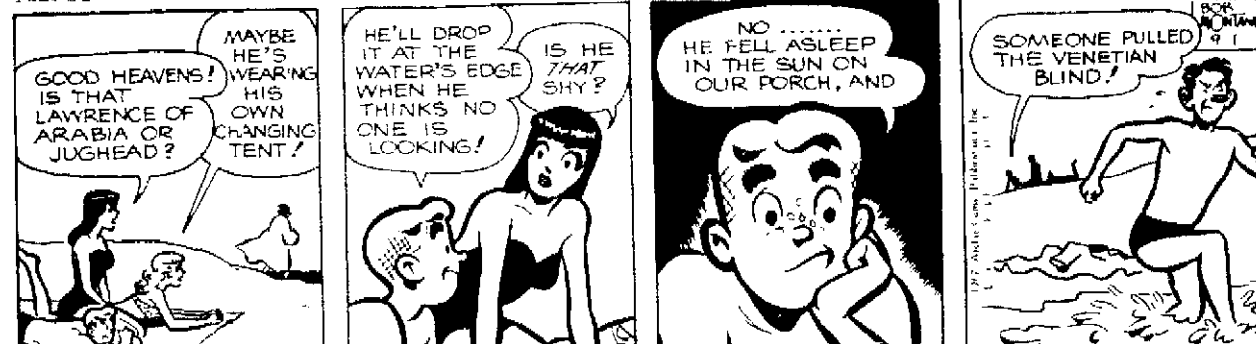

Observe that South can hardly lose by his play in clubs. True, if West has the king, it may cost an overtrick, however, the latter can never attack diamonds himself without establishing declarer's king. In other words South can afford to lose a club trick to West without endangering the contract. The vital consideration was to exert every effort to prevent East from getting in. Perhaps the latter should not have been fooled, however, the declarer deserves every credit for laying the groundwork.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

DIAGNOSING LUNG CANCER

Of all malignancies, lung cancer is the leading cause of death. Only one in 20 is cured. This sad situation has not improved in 20 years. Why? Surgery is the only cure but the lesion must be localized if therapy is to be successful. Unfortunately, only 15 per cent of those operated upon are helped.

Attempts at earlier diagnosis have been discouraging. Cough is the most common symptom but it is meaningless because most of the victims are heavy smokers who have hacked for years. A change in the character, time, and frequency of the cough is highly suggestive of lung cancer. Bringing up flecks of blood, shortness of breath, weight loss, and chest pain also are late manifestations and of little value in early diagnosis.

X-ray is the best way to pinpoint the disease. An abnormal shadow is suspect. Other tests may be needed to prove whether or not the opacity is malignant or an infection. Sputum cytology is similar to the laboratory procedure that is used in making the Pap test. When done properly, diagnosis can be established in 77 per cent of those with lung cancer.

Bronchoscopy is another test in which a tube is passed into the windpipe and the bronchi are searched carefully.

A small piece is removed for biopsy study. Now and then a gland in the neck is excised on the assumption that the cancer has spread to this area.

To settle the question without delay when a solitary shadow is present, exploratory chest surgery is done to remove the tumor. Deep lung tumors may require removal of one lobe (lobectomy).

TOMORROW: Diverticulitis.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

DRUG REACTION

T.M. writes: Why do I become drowsy when I take allergy pills?

REPLY

Drowsiness is one of the unpleasant side effects of the antihistaminic products. Many of the advertised sleeping pills contain this chemical and the manufacturers utilize this side effect as the reason why the drug is beneficial.

SHE'S 37, HE'S 32

P.E. writes: I'm 37 and look 25. A 32-year-old man wants to marry me. From the medical point of view could such a marriage turn out well?

REPLY

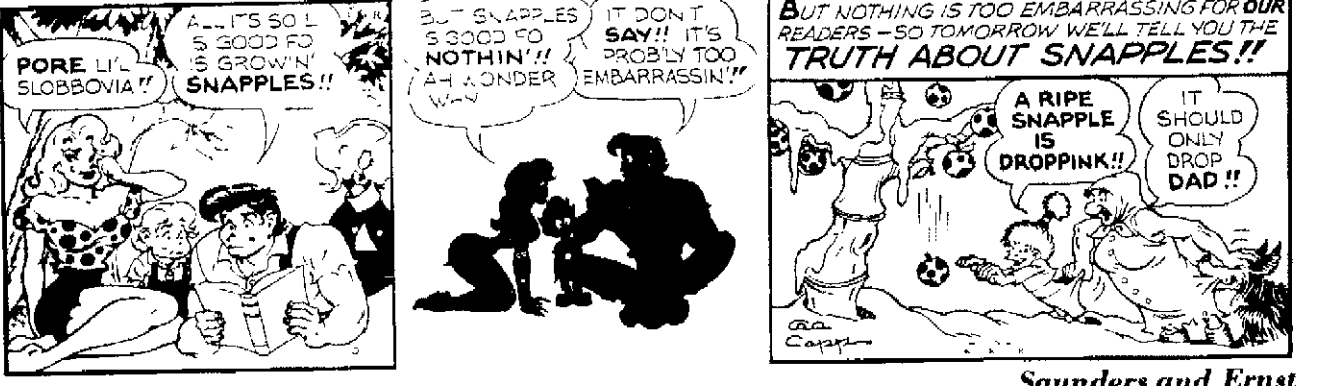

Yes, how lucky can you get? I assume you are in love, your fiancé knows your age and is not looking for a wife who will be more of a mother than a sweetheart to him.

PILOT UNEASY IN FATAL JUMP

Skydive 'Didn't Seem Right'

By THOMAS R. CASTOR
OBERLIN, Ohio (AP) —The pilot of an airplane from which 16 parachutists leaped to their death in Lake Erie Sunday near Huron, Ohio, said he told his co-pilot just after the jump: "I hope we didn't drop them in the water."

"At this time nothing was really wrong, but something didn't seem right," said Robert Karns of Vermilion in a deposition to officials of the National Transportation Safety Board to day at a hearing on the Oberlin College campus.

Karns was asked if he then tried to "go back on radar control and establish your position."

He said he didn't confirm his position but "wasn't too concerned because I thought I was in radar contact." While he said he couldn't give his exact position, he now feels he was "at the shore or a mile over the water when I dropped the jumpers."

Referring to a transcript from radio tapes during the ill-fated flight, Karns said he told the Federal Aviation Administration control man at Cleveland: "If you could put us over Orter airfield, I sure would appreciate it."

He said the operator told him: "I believe I have you in radar contact," and later added: "I've got only one target out there."

Karns said he then asked: "If you have got us, where are we in relation to the airport?"

The FAA told him, Karns said: "The B25 is two miles west of Orter."

When he heard this, Karns said, he began to slow the converted B25, two-engine Mitchell bomber of World War II to 100-110 miles an hour. He said he opened the bomb-bay doors and made a visual hand signal to the jumpers who cleared the aircraft in about 15 seconds.

The pilot said he felt some apprehension about his position because he had been flying north for what he thought was about five minutes before turning back and had seen Lake Erie through a break in the broken cloud pattern.

He said it is "only two minutes from the lake to Orter," so he feared he might have been well out from the shoreline before heading back.

Karns' testimony was the first of some 15 depositions which the board expected to take.

Philly Officials Like Boat-School Idea

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—New York City and Philadelphia school officials toured the moth-balled aircraft carrier USS Tawara yesterday and came away "impressed by the tremendous amount of space" it would offer as a floating schoolhouse.

The 888-foot long World War II ship is berthed at the Philadelphia Naval Base. It is being stripped of its battle gear by the Navy and will be offered for sale for about $400,000.

Besides the school officials, historical groups in Florida and New England also have asked the Navy about the possibility of acquiring the carrier as a museum.

Leading a group of about half a dozen from New York City were Fern Reinier, assistant to the president of New York City Council, and Abe Goodman, the council's legislative counsel.

Also along was Harold Yoh, a consulting engineer to the Philadelphia school board, who forecast difficulty in removing heavy metal bulkheads below decks to create large classrooms.

"But the problem would not be an unsurmountable one," he said.

Both school systems, faced with overcrowding problems, have found the idea of a movable, floating classroom attractive.

New York bid unsuccessfully for the liner HMS Queen Elizabeth last month for use as a floating school. A Philadelphia school official said yesterday his office was considering a bid on the HMS Queen Mary, when it is retired from service.

PATRICK CHAILLAC

Exchange Student Named

Warren will be home during the coming school year for a 17-year-old young man from Nevilly Sur Sein, France.

Joining the John J. Shaffer family, of 820 Conewango ave., is Patrick Chaillac, an International Field Service student. Patrick, who has been here three weeks, will attend Warren Area High School to study English, Speech and History.

The youth is interested in political science and hopes one day to serve as a Diplomat.

Patrick's hobbies are chess and tennis. While he was a Boy Scout he hiked through the Alps and did some skiing.

Chaillac is already well liked by his Warren family and those whom he has met. He is eagerly awaiting Wednesday, Sept. 6 and the opening day of school.

Polls Show LBJ At a Low Level Of Popularity

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
President Johnson is pictured in two current public opinion polls as being at a substantially low level of national popularity and running behind or, at best, just holding his own in two mythical presidential races.

In the first Gallup Poll taken since the recent outbreak of riots in urban centers, the President ran behind Michigan's Gov. George Romney by eight percentage points. It was Romney 49, Johnson 41 and the remaining 10 per cent undecided.

In a mid-June survey Romney trailed the President by five points.

In the current issue of Newsweek, pollster Louis Harris reported that his latest survey shows a Democratic ticket headed by the President running even with a Republican ticket of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.
